

I've heard that one of the large media conglomerates have directed that their several stations in many markets air a biased attack on one candidate for president. There are restrictions on the media with regards to who funds partisan broadcasting. I don't believe any such restrictions apply in this case, however, the principle that the airwaves are public property and that those who use FCC liscensed broadcast bands have a duty to act "in the public interest" does seem to be applicable.

Therefore I would ask that the FCC act to restrain the abuse of our public airwaves to political advantage, or at least force the ststions to provide equal fee time to the opposition.

Thank you, Roger Leeson
